PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

LET US GIVE OURSELVES THE ONCE OVER

The proof of the prescription is in the taking. The proof of public health is in its application.

A brilliant diagnosis and a masterly choice of remedy will satisfy the medical student and win admiration from colleagues, but they do not cure the patient. The prescription must be filled and taken as directed. The remedial procedures must be selected so as to fit the mental, social and financial environment of the patient that will use it. A prescription for "Adex Tablets and orange juice" will not build up the broken resistance of the job-hunter with a starving family. "Absolute rest in bed, freedom from worry and a list of nourishing foods" will not cure the consumptive mother with a brood to cook for and little to cook. It is not the knowledge that cures but its application.

As with the individual, so it is with man as a social group—with preventive medicine. Of the practice of Preventive Medicine there are two rather distinct divisions mutually dependent for results: the division of Research and the division of Application. The first has been functioning for many years—Pasteur and Jenner shining as pioneer luminaries. A host of brilliant workers have added to the fund of facts. From time to time so-called "discoveries" have caught the popular imagination and "heroes" have been proclaimed, and semiscientific popular writers have pounced upon others for magazine and book material. But nearly all of the work has gone quietly on adding to the bulk of knowledge for the prevention of sickness.

As a result of this work we already know how to eliminate rabies, typhoid, diphtheria, smallpox, tetanus, tuberculosis, hookworm and malaria and, probably pellagra, as well as other diseases seldom seen in this country. We have almost secured a strangle hold on measles, whooping cough and scarlet fever and we know a lot about the prevention of syphilis.

This fund of knowledge is piling up steadily year after year. The research division is efficient. It attracts some of the best minds in our medical schools. Its growth is steady. It lays its plans far ahead with reasonable certainty of opportunity to see them through. The caliber of its personnel attracts legacies and endowments.

But in the use of the facts of preventive medicine given us by the research division—in their application to the good of humanity—we have muddled and are still muddling. We are not efficient. We are not thorough.

In our own state, which ranks high in the practice of preventive medicine, yellow fever is the only one of the preventable diseases that we have eliminated. Hundreds of thousands of our people are still unvaccinated and smallpox epidemics are possible. Two-thirds of our children are still susceptible to diphtheria. We allow ourselves and our children to be mangled by rabid dogs, and the distribution of Pasteur treatment is still a big part of the work of the State Laboratory. In large areas of the state, rural anti-typhoid measures are unpracticed, almost unknown. Syphilis and gonorrhea—the most devastating diseases of them all—we haven't yet dared to attack openly, except in spots.

Many thousands of our children are mal-nourished, ill-fed or semistarved, not because of poverty but because of ignorance or neglect. Their efforts to assimilate an adequate education are hopeless to themselves and a frightfully expensive drag upon the school system.

Sanitary conditions in the majority of our schools are primitive. Heating, lighting and seating are left to chance. Few teachers are trained in health management and in the training of children in social habits.

Not that we have not made marvelous progress. We have. But we bump and skid and spin the wheels. The engine stutters and misses with inferior gas. The urban centers have far outstripped the rural, and both lag far behind in results that should be attained, taking into consideration the progress of the research division in preventive medicine. The application of preventive medicine has not kept up with the facts at its disposal, except in favored spots. Why? My answer is "for lack of men and the opportunity to work out constructive plans over a period of years."

The practice of preventive medicine is a distinct specialty, as is research, or obstetrics or pediatrics or eye-ear-nose-and-throat, or orthopedic surgery. And it embodies the very essence of the ideals of our medical training. Yet how many of the best students in our medical schools are choosing preventive medicine as their prospective specialty? Only the occasional missionary-minded idealist.

"What has it to offer?" they ask.

"A laborer's wage, a tenure of office too often controlled by a small politician and little of honor among the profession." What a goal for four or five years of special training.

What can be done about it?

I beg to suggest some things that can be done.

Establish Public Health Districts to cover all rural as well as urban areas in the state. Have them large enough to be attractive but not too large to destroy that personal touch of Health Commissioner with parents and children that is absolutely necessary to success. Let the tenure of office be dependent upon results as measured by men who can judge results.

NORTH CAROLINA PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION

Establish a comprehensive alliance of Public Health and Public Education.

Under this alliance protect all children from epidemic diseases.

Eliminate unhealthful school environments.

Give teachers training in school-health management.

Attack malnutrition in the elementary grades by supervised lunch.

and by feeding concentrated vitamins to all under-weights.

Concentrate the program upon the children—all the children. Let the big army of school teachers help. They want to be shown how to help effectively. It is they that most of all realize the pedagogical difference between a room with careless, dirty, ill-nourished children and one where there is pride in neatness, in cleanly personal and social habits, and a minimum of physical handicaps. It is the difference between drudgery and joy in the day's work.

The young children are the bearers of progress in preventive medicine. Benefit the children and you get the cooperation of their parents. Children, healthy and able to assimilate an education, trained to health. ful living habits, will prevent most of the morbidity of middle-age.

this morbidity that is the arch foe of human happiness.

It is against this foe that we are using, with unpardonable lack of skill, the weapons fashioned for us in the laboratories of medical research.

PRESIDENT FORD: We want to pay tribute this morning to two of the most beloved men in the state who used their lives toward the prevention of disease, and we have arranged on our program for papers on the life and character of Dr. Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse and Dr. Cyrus Thompson. First we shall hear Dr. James M. Northington on the life and character of Dr. Thompson.

THE LIFE AND CHARACTER OF DR. CYRUS THOMPSON JAMES M. NORTHINGTON, M.D., Charlotte

Dr. Cyrus Thompson, I know, was known to every one of you intimately, possibly with the exception of some of those who have entered these ranks so recently as not to have been able to establish the contacts which have been a source of so much pleasure and profit and happiness to those who have been in the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina for a longer period.

I take it that the usual style of address on the life of a friend is not the most appealing. There are very few of us who are seriously interested in just the day and year a man was born or of what parents. although we are much interested in his parentage, or in just what county or town saw him come into the world or in a detailed description of his early education and later education. Rather, we would like to know some more intimate things, some of the details of his life that are very characteristic, and then some of his outstanding characteristics.

Some months ago, with numbers of other friends of his, I stood in the shade of the cedars that cast their shadows over the graves of his ancestors and saw Dr. Thompson laid to rest. I went around and read from the tombstones the names of his parents, and it seemed to me I saw something characteristic there. His father was named Franklin and his mother Leah. As I stood there, not far from the shores of the Atlantic, in the quiet county of Onslow, I thought of how exceptional these people must have been, these parents that in the few years very shortly after the devastating War between the States had, as we now call it (I am afraid with not proper understanding), caught a vision. Evidently they observed that their son was an exceptional person and determined they were going to send him out to be of some use in the world and happiness to himself, and in those hard times they made up their minds to give him a liberal education. I have no doubt it meant much of denial to them. It was a long way from there to Ashland, in the State of Virginia, the seat of Randolph-Macon College; but they sent him there to take a literary degree, and from there to the University of Virginia to take the first year of his medical course, and from there to Tulane-where he would have the excellent clinical facilities not afforded by the town of Charlottesville, where he would have to do with the diseases that afflicted his home town and community, with the malarial fevers which were the scourge of that day, and where they could not know but that Onslow would be visited by the yellow fever as it had visited disastrously Norfolk and Mobile and New Orleans less than twenty years prior to the time when Dr. Cyrus Thompson was sent out to get his medical education. It impressed me tremendously that these two in sending their offspring out to get his education had such a breadth of view, having him sweep through such a wide are as Richmond, Charlottesville, and New Orleans, and in having him spend so much time when it was only necessary, so far as his getting a license to practice medicine and so far as his making a material success of it was concerned, that he, with the schooling he had then, go to some insignificant school and obtain his diploma. Evidently this great man was the son of noble parents.

All of you know Dr. Thompson's work as a public health official. He was not merely a social ornament, although he was that. He was not an echo to the policies put forward, but most often it was he who shaped the policies, and to him as much as to any other person do we owe the tremendous success, the saving of life, which has been effected by the public-health organizations in North Carolina. I love to think that the poor State of North Carolina (and we are poor, notwithstanding reports to the contrary concerning the revenue paid to the United States Government) has done so much in public-health work that when the League of Nations sent delegations to this country some several years ago (less than ten), to study public-health methods, they divided, one going to the powerful, rich, majestic State of New York and the other to the poor State of North Carolina-but the state which had such a public-health system that these public-health officers of the world wanted to learn about it at first hand. It so happened that this delegation came into our district at the very time that we were holding a district meeting (and I say this, I hope, with a little pardonable pride so far as the membership of our district goes.) On this delegation the chief was a Hollander. Other nations represented were Poland. Russia. Argentine. Mexico. and Brazil; and in our own mem. bership of that district society we had doctors who could welcome these gentlemen not only in German and in Spanish, but one who spoke the difficult language of Russia. So you see that although we are a poor state we have done exceedingly creditable work in public health and also number among the doctors of the state gentlemen of rare linguistic abilities and scholarship, gentlemen high in scholarship as was Dr Cvrus Thompson. True friend as all of us realized Dr. Thompson to be. he is not only a comfort but an inspiration now that he is resting from his labors. While we can derive much of comfort from our realization of what he was to us, the great good that he can do for us is to inspire us to follow the way that he led and to hold high his ideals.

Dr. Thompson had a broad outlook on life. He had the true con. ception of education as primarily and principally the teaching of how to live rather than how to make a living. The other is necessary, but he believed with the Chinese: "Hast thou two loaves? Sell one, and buy a lily with which to feed thy soul." The gentle David Thoreau was a friend of Dr. Thompson, and Dr. Thompson well understood that "Friendship will make a man honest; it will make him a hero: it will even make him a saint." He understood along with Stevenson. also (the opposite, many of us think, unfortunately has come to pass in our state. losing sight of this idea of Stevenson's): "There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good: myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy if I may." Few men more than Dr. Thompson contributed to the furtherance of that idea. Henry Van Dyke, the Presbyterian minister whom Wilson appointed as minister to Belgium, or ambassa. dor to Belgium, in his time was a man of the kind Dr. Thompson loved -lover of nature, lover of liberty, lover of good talk. As you know, Dr. Thompson was a raconteur of the highest order, a man who from the rich depository of his mind, which had been filled with the expressions and the writings of the great and good of all times, brought forth at will the things which suited the occasion and suited the individual Van Dyke said: "The very best thing in good talk is friendship. How it dissolves barriers, loosens all constraints, and diffuses itself like a fine old cordial-this feeling that we understand and trust each other and wish each other heartily well."

Just another thing from Van Dyke that I think is peculiarly appropriate, lines with which you are all probably familiar:

"Oh, who will walk a mile with me Along life's merry way?

A comrade blithe and full of glee,
Who dares to laugh out loud and free.

"Oh, who will walk a mile with me
Along life's weary way?
A friend whose heart has eyes to see
The stars that shine o'er the darkling lea."

Our friend has rendered back to the common store his splendid share of the elemental atoms. We commemorate him; we love to think of the comfort he gave us; and we will cherish his memory and attempt to further his ideals. (Applause.)

DR. GRADY G. DIXON, Ayden: Ladies and gentlemen, listening to Dr. Northington's remarks concerning Dr. Thompson carried me back to April. 1917. when I attended my first North Carolina Medical Society meeting. Dr. Laughinghouse was president of the Society and had taken me under his wing as a new practitioner in his county, so to speak, to bring me up in the way that a young man should go, to initiate me into organized medicine, and to help me to find my way. He introduced me to Dr. Thompson at Asheville, and I consider myself the most lucky man in eastern North Carolina, for from that day until the day that Dr. Thompson died he was my best friend. We lived about seventy miles apart, yet at every opportunity the old gentleman. it seemed, went out of his way to give me a lift, a boost, a helping hand; and for that reason, if no other, I think that I have lost in the past year my two best friends in the practice of medicine. I just wanted to say that much about Dr. Thompson, because I loved him, if for selfish reasons, because he seemed to love me.

THE LIFE AND CHARACTER OF DR. CHARLES O'HAGAN LAUGHINGHOUSE

GRADY G. DIXON, M. D., Ayden

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In my mind one of the greatest privileges that a man has is an opportunity to boost one friend to another; yet there is another privilege greater. I consider it the highest honor that you could bestow upon me in allowing me to come before you to discuss the life and character of Dr. Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse. The great subject that I have and the short time allowed me to present it necessitates—my touching the high spots only. One who was acquainted with Dr. Laughinghouse and has sufficient vocabulary could talk on and on and on, almost indefinitely, in describing the good and great things of his life, his character and his work.

Dr. Laughinghouse was the son of Captain Joseph J. and Eliza O'Hagan Laughinghouse, and a grandson of the beloved Dr. Charles O'Hagan. He was born in Pitt County, February 25, 1871, and grew up as the ordinary country boy of his time. He received his early education in private schools and at Horner's Military Academy, Ox. ford, N. C., attended the University of North Carolina for two years and completed his medical education at the University of Pennsylvania. He graduated here in 1893 with honors. After completing his medical education he returned to his old home in Greenville and soon became an outstanding member of the medical profession.

In 1895 he married Miss Carrie Dail of Snow Hill, N. C., and from 1895 until 1930 the doctor and Miss Carrie lived in North Carolina. They were the most congenial, happy, optimistic couple that North Carolina has known. They reared two sons and one daughter in Greenville.

In 1902 Dr. Laughinghouse was elected a member of the State Board of Health and served continuously as a member of the Board of Health until he resigned in 1925. In 1917 Dr. Laughinghouse was president of the North Carolina Medical Society-the same year war was declared in April against the Imperial German Government. In May, Dr. Laughinghouse was commissioned a major in the medical corps of the United States Army. In September, 1918, he was sent to France as a Lieutenant-Colonel, in command of Base Hospital No. 85. In March, 1919, he returned to Greenville and resumed his practice of medicine.

Dr. Laughinghouse was a fellow of the American Medical Association. a member. and past president of the Pitt County Medical Society, the North Carolina Medical Society, and a member of the Southern Medical Association and the Seaboard Medical Society.

Dr. Laughinghouse was the first post commander of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion. He was a member of the Greenville Kiwanis Club and had been president of the same. In Masonry he belonged to Greenville Lodge No. 284, A. F. & A. M. In politics he was a democrat, and a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. I have cited his membership in these various organizations to show that no matter what it was or who started it, if it were for the good of the community, Dr. Laughinghouse was not only ready, but willing and anxious to take an active part, and once he had become connected with any organization or fraternity his brethren soon saw his great worth and pushed him to the forefront, without his seeking. He was the first man in the community to grasp the need of better educational facilities for the public as a whole. The Good Road Program was initiated in Pitt County by Dr. Laughinghouse. Public health work with him was a hobby. The welfare of the general public, in all respects, was his creed. No task was too great for him to tackle; none too small to attract his attention; and when once he put his hand to the plough, he never looked back but drove straight ahead to the completion of the task-a wonderful friend, a loyal worker and a valiant foe. Being a grandson of Dr. Charles O'Hagan and Dr. O'Hagan having emigrated directly from Ireland to North Carolina, you can readily see that he came honestly by his tenacity and will to fight for a just cause. His Irish sense of humor was equalled by few and excelled by none.

From 1902 until 1925, the twenty-three years that he served as a member of the State Board of Health, were his most active years in life and in the practice of medicine; yet he could always find time to serve his fellowmen through his work with the Board of Health, and were I to look about for some one to compare with him, I could find no character in literature more fitting than the memorable Abou Ben Adam, who upon being told that his name was not among those who loved the Lord, replied, "I pray, thee, then write me as one who loves his fellowmen."

In October, 1926, Dr. Laughinghouse accepted the position as State Health officer and secretary to the State Board of Health and from that time until his death he gave his life for the state as a whole. Day upon day and night upon night, with but a few hours of sleep, he went from east to west and north to south, serving those that he loved-not in a half-hearted way but as one whose heart, soul and body was wrapped in his work. When it became necessary he could wield the mailed fist as a czar, and when convinced that his course was right, no amount of opposition could deter him; yet at all times he was gentle, kind and considerate. The elevation to office, homage from those that loved him, and authority never turned his head, but gave him a great incentive to do a greater work and to be a better friend to those that loved and trusted him.

Dr. Laughinghouse was a great lover of books, both prose and poetry. When most men were asleep, Laughinghouse was reading. In that way, he not only kept up, but kept ahead of the masses and made himself a leader of men.

PARAPHRASING MR. KIPLING'S "IF"

He could keep his head when all about him Were losing theirs and blaming it on him; He could trust himself when all men doubted him, But make allowance for their doubting too; He could wait and not be tired by waiting, Or being lied about, not deal in lies, Or being hated not giving way to hating, And yet he did not look too good, nor talk too wise.

He could dream and not make dreams his master; He could think and not make thoughts his aim, He could meet with both Triumph and Disaster, And treat those two imposters just the same; He could bear to hear the truth he had spoken Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools, He could watch the things he gave his life to, broken, and stoop And build them up with worn out tools.

He could make one heap of all his winnings, And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,

And lose, and start again at his beginning
And never breathe one word about his loss;
He forced his heart and nerve and sinew
To serve his turn long after they were gone,
And so hold on when there was nothing in him except
The will which said to him, "Hold on."

He could talk with crowds and keep his virtue,
Or walk with kings nor lose the common touch,
Neither foes nor loving friends could hurt him,
All men counted with him but none too much;
He could fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds worth of distance run;
His was the earth and everything in it,
And which is more, he was a man well done.

PRESIDENT FORD: Somehow after listening to these tributes to these two great men whose loss we are feeling now and shall feel for a long time to come, it seems almost sacrilegious to come back and go on with the program. But the program must go on. So we shall now hear from Miss Columbia Munds on "The Value of the Layman in the Public Health Nursing Program." Miss Munds.

THE VALUE OF THE LAYMAN IN THE PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING PROGRAM

COLUMBIA MUNDS, R.N., Wilmington

In studying the history of Public Health Nursing we look with pride back to the days of Egypt, India and other ancient countries, to the work that was done by the people for the sick poor, then on down to the time of the early Christians to Phoebe, to whom St. Paul alluded, and who is the first visiting nurse whose name we know. To the time of the Crusades when the members of the religious orders gave practically all of the care to the sick, down to the middle of the nineteenth century, when William Rathbone, of Liverpool, England, with the help of Florence Nightengale, organized the first district nursing association in the modern sense of the term.

The progress that has been made in the seventy-five years since the above-mentioned organization was started is truly remarkable. One by one the organizations have come into existence, slowly at first then more rapidly as the public appreciated the value of this work. The first visiting nurse in the United States began her work in 1877 in New York City, by 1893 Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago had fallen into line. In 1906 there were twenty-one visiting nurse organizations and in 1924 about three thousand, employing nearly twenty thousand nurses. We have no later definite statistics; the National Organization for Public Health Nursing is taking a census this year.

The National Organization for Public Health Nursing is a clearing house for professional problems, it maintains, among other things, an advisory service for both individual nurses and organizations, who are members, a field service, surveys are made on request, a statistical service, publishes a magazine, has a loan library and in cooperation with another organization a vocational service. The nurses employed by the corporate members of the National Organization, are rated by them (the National) on preliminary and professional education, State Registration and Supervision.

Nurses, themselves, are the first to realize they could not have accomplished this alone, this rapid development has been made possible through the coöperation and interest of lay people. At first this lay-group was composed of women, women from ancient times being considered naturally nurses, it seemed their job; as a rule one woman with vision and leadership made a group of women realize the need of nursing in the homes of the sick poor in their community.

Public Health Nursing Organizations render three types of service, first bedside care, not only to the sick poor but any one who does not need or who cannot afford the full time service of a graduate nurse may get the necessary care, those who can are expected to pay in part or whole for this service. We emphasize the fact that care is given the needy before it is to those who can pay, who could, if necessary, get care from other sources. The second type of service is Prevention of Disease, which is taught through the principles of Health, Hygiene and Sanitation; and third, the Health of the Individual, the Family and the Community is promoted through coöperation with all health and Social Agencies.

As we have said, the Public Health Nursing Organizations of the present day generally start with one nurse whose salary is paid by a group of interested laymen, later as the work develops the need for an increase in the staff is realized. In the past the Board of Directors were to supply the funds to finance this service, not to direct the work; now though there must be a professional head for the nursing work, she depends more and more on her Board to help in the solution of the problems that arise and in consequence the members of the Board develop in the directions in which they are most needed.

Dr. C. E. A. Winslow said, in an article in a recent "Public Health Nurse," the official magazine of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing, "Leadership of the modern kind must be based on expert technical knowledge and indeed it is perhaps one of the functions of the group leader to see that creative thinking has solid materials of facts out of which to create." Later he said this is especially true of the leaders in Public Health Nursing Work.

So you realize the task before the chairman of our Board is no small one if the Board functions to meet the needs of the sick, for whom the organization is created, to direct the staff through the supervisor of nurses, to acquaint the community with the needs of the organization and the work it is doing, and last but not least, to create in each member of the Board his or her appreciation of the Board's responsibility in contributing to the forward movement of Public Health Nursing everywhere.

There are three types of Public Health Nursing Organizations: The official, the non-official, and the one jointly administered. The official agency is what the name implies and works under State and Municipal Health Departments, Boards of Education and other official groups. The non-official is under Public Health and Visiting Nurse Associations, Red Cross Chapters, Insurance Companies and other non-official groups. In the third type, the administrative body includes members from both official and non-official groups. The last two mentioned are of the most interest to the general public from the administrative viewpoint and are the ones we will discuss, the personnel and working plan are practically the same.

The theory that the chain is as strong as its weakest link is true in the selection of the Board of Directors. To have a strong efficient Board, each member must be carefully selected, to be sure he or she is both interested in this type of work and also socially minded. The Board should be representative of the community, the members being chosen from all Civic and Religious groups. It has been realized for some time, that with the enlarged scope of the work, men as well as women are needed on the Boards and at the present time many Boards are about equally divided as to membership. The officers are, as a rule, selected from the Board membership, and the committees are appointed by the President. In choosing members for committees. great care should be used to place each person on the committee that will interest her most, remember also nearly every one is stimulated to do her best by being placed in a position of responsibility and in consequence will not only carry out the job given her but will be more interested with each meeting in the program of the Association.

It is in the committees that the lay worker is invaluable, she can relieve the professional worker of everything a layman can do and so the nurse has more time for nursing work.

Each organization may have as many committees as is needed, different conditions demand a larger or a smaller number; the most important for all, however, are the following: First, Finance. The budget is prepared by the Treasurer, the Chairman of the Finance Committee and the Executive Director, who is the Supervisor of Nurses; the basis of the budget is the income and expenditures of the previous year and an additional amount to cover any proposed expansion of the work. The funds are derived from the Community Chest, if there is one, from allowance made by the local government, from charitable organizations, fees from insurance companies and private patients and any other available source.

Through the Nursing Committee the contact is established between the Board and the Nurses. This committee meets with the Supervisor of Nurses to direct the nurse's work, plan for their hours on duty, salary, vacation, sick leave and anything else pertaining especially to the nurses; if there are complaints, they are investigated by this committee.

There are two committees on Education, one for the Staff and the other for Board members. Each should have a regular program so that both nurses and Board members will be able to keep up with the changes and improvements in Public Health Nursing work.

Publicity speaks, or should speak, for itself, this may be gained through newspapers, posters, public speaking and the regular reports of the organization.

Board membership is the committee where the choice of the new member is carefully considered, where the member is selected for the committee where she can serve best.

Some organizations have a Supply Committee, others depend on the Associated Charities or some other group for material aid for the patients. If there is a supply closet it is a "Loan Closet," as one of the fundamental principles of Public Health Nursing is that nurses do not give material relief.

The Social Service Committee works with the other Social Service organizations in the community.

Volunteer Committee: More and more the usefulness of the volunteer is realized in this work. The selection of the volunteer worker is in the hands of this committee; in some organizations the volunteer is given a regular course to prepare her for the work to which she is assigned. Volunteers are expected to carry on just as faithfully and regularly as a paid worker, otherwise they are of no real help. They may give service in many ways, in the office with clerical work, with the physical examinations of school children, in the clinics and with a motor corps.

The Medical Advisory Committee is a most important one, keeps the medical profession in touch with the work of the nurses of the association and provides a clearing house for many professional problems. Standing orders are sanctioned by this committee, a nurse may only pay two calls to a sick patient, and use these orders unless a doctor is on the case.

As the work has developed, and the lay group used more and more, their sense of responsibility has also developed as they appreciate not only the importance of the work but of their share in it.

At the biennial meeting of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing in 1926, a number of lay workers attending the sessions, realized the benefit they too would derive from group meetings at intervals to discuss the non-professional problems of these organizations. A layman's meeting was called in 1928 with that of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing; the response was far beyond the most optimistic expectations and at that meeting the Board and Committee Members Section of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing was created. I had the privilege of being present; it was most interesting to see the interest in and knowledge of the work shown by these men and women. They came, about a hundred, at their own expense, from Maine, California, the East and the South. To stimulate further interest on the part of the lay-group, many organizations include, since that meeting, convention expenses, not only for one or more nurses but also for a representative from the Board, in their budget. Shortly after this meeting a secretary for this section was added to the staff of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing: she is well fitted for the position, having served as a Board member for some years before beginning this work. In addition to the sessions at the National meetings. Board Member In. stitutes are held at different places several times during the year and a Board Members Forum conducted in the official magazine each month.

I have tried to show the gradual working in of the lay group and the vital place this group holds in the carrying on and advancement of Public Health Nursing at the present time.

We, the Public Health Nurses of North Carolina, hope that many years will not pass before the Lay Group, who have made themselves such an important factor in our organizations, will have a definite place in our State meetings.

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, Greenville: I move that we stand for one minute with bowed heads in memory of Dr. Laughinghouse and Dr. Thompson and then at the tap of your gavel, Mr. President, adjourn and attend the exercises at Duke University, meeting here this after. noon at two-thirty, as scheduled on the program.

PRESIDENT FORD: It will not be necessary to put that motion: it does not even need to be seconded. We will all rise and bow our heads for a moment.

The members rose and stood in silence for a moment, with bowed heads. The morning session then adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The Public Health Association met in Lecture Room "A" was called to order at three p. m. by President Ford.

THE THREE -ATIONS OF PUBLIC HEALTH R. S. McGeachy, M.D., Greenville

When I get through reading this paper, no doubt the greater majority of you who hear will wonder "why on earth he wrote at all." so I guess I had best satisfy your curiosity at the outset About two months ago our much beloved, neat, bald-headed, goodnatured secretary, Frank M. Register, wrote and asked me to write a paper, and I-have always admired and respected him so much that I just did not have the heart to say "no," so if you are going to wreak vengeance on anyone, throw eggs at Frank, not at me.

In 1923 I wrote on "The Health Officer's Golden Rule," and before I read my paper someone asked me, "What is the golden rule?" so I guess I had best explain "The Three -Ations." They are Education. Sanitation and Vaccination. In my opinion every agency for the promotion of health, whether in county, state or nation, may be classed under one or the other of these heads. I have diverted somewhat from the usual order and have placed what I consider the most important agency first. With a properly educated citizenship along the lines of personal hygiene and community health, the other two agencies, Sani.

tation and Vaccination will naturally be put into effect. For the promotion of public health education in our various communities. I think we should cooperate with all agencies that are in any way interested in the welfare of the public. such as Parent-Teacher Associations. Womans' Clubs, Civic Clubs, and we should be on very friendly terms with our home and farm demonstration agents and use to the limit our local press. We should, I think, take advantage of every invitation to talk at Parent-Teacher meetings, civic clubs, etc. Just what is best to discuss in these talks will have to be decided by the local conditions at the time the talk is made. The public has, in my opinion, a perfect right to expect instructions in the proper use of preventive measures and to whom may the public look for such instruction except to the various health departments and the medical profession as a whole, and it gives me much pleasure to say that it is my opinion that the profession as a whole is paying much more attention now to the proper education along lines of prevention than in former days. Page after page could be written under the head of Education, but I must pass on but I cannot pass from this subject without quoting from the most highly prized volume of my library, "Hall's Journal of Health," published in New York City in October, 1854. Dr. Hall asks, "Where stands the parent who gives no instruction to his children, nor causes them to be instructed as to the laws of life. Does a good citizen, even let alone a Christian parent, do his duty by his children, when he goes no further than the catechism, the confession or the prayer book?"

The first thing I wish to say under the head of Sanitation is to commend the state field workers in the department of Sanitation, for their universally gentlemanly conduct, and to thank them for their earnest and sincere desire to work in perfect harmony with the various county departments. This spirit, in my opinion, is so much more manifest than it was when I first began health work that I felt I must make my feelings known. Sanitation, in my opinion, runs Education a close race for importance in health work, and were it not as previously stated, that a properly educated public will naturally put into effect proper sanitary measures, it might stand first. From day to day I am more and more impressed with the great importance of proper sanitation. The individual should be taught to lead a sober, wellordered life. The home should be, however small or humble, clean and well-ordered, and those that dwell there should be made happy and contented by each member of the household contributing his or her bit for the well-being of all. Incorporated villages and towns may he passed up almost entirely, for their sanitary conditions are cared for by state laws. The great importance of the proper care of dairies has been forcefully impressed upon me and I urge each health officer present to guard them with zealous care, and to pay especial attention to the dairy personnel. I hope to see the day when every health officer can control his milk supply as Broadway now does in Tarboro. There all milk is required to be produced in Grade A dairies and is pastuerized before distribution. This, to me, is the way it should be. I feel that we should watch very carefully those who have recently recovered from typhoid, especially if they have been cared for in a hospital or institution, and before being allowed to return home especially if the home is rural and outside a sanitary area. We should be reasonably sure they are not carriers. Within less than twenty-five miles of here I can show you three graves side by side in which are buried three young adults from one family, all because a sister brought her baby recuperating from an unrecognized case of fever to her mother's home. Should we have a carrier in a rural home, what preventive measures can we legally enforce? As a test of the value of sanitation. I hope to have a sanitary closet built and a pump installed at every home in a given area, and where there is anything to be gained by it. have the house screened and then over a period of time observe the morbidity and mortality rate in this area as compared with the rest of the county and if there is a marked improvement I will "blow my horn," and if not, the boy that the calf ran over won't have anything on me.

NORTH CAROLINA PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION

At Asheville in 1923 I stated that I was a firm believer in Vacci. nation. but at the same time I felt that this was work that could be done by the general practitioner and that he was entitled to a fee for his services, and I am of the same opinion still, only more so. I, at the same time, discouraged the promiscuous advertising that we did free work, and that we should only do group vaccinating at certain specified times and places. I hope to see the day come when we will not have to vaccinate at all, because it will be taken care of by the physicians of our localities. From now on I expect to encourage the physicians in my territory to tell the mothers when their children are born that they know they want their children to grow to be strong. healthy, useful citizens, and that he, as her physician and medical adviser, desires to assist in every way possible and for her to bring the baby to him when it is six months old and let him give it toxinantitoxin to keep it from having diphtheria; and a little later bring it back for typhoid inoculation and smallpox vaccination. Such action on the part of the physicians would, in my opinion, increase greatly the confidence in and esteem for the physicians, and would do more to re-establish that old friendly relationship between the patient and the physician that is so aptly described in three words, "The Family Doctor," than almost any agency I can think of. Education, you might say, practically covers all other agencies, and in closing the subject of Vaccination, I would suggest that we strive to impress upon the public the fact that immunization is not a fake, but, if administered in the proper way and at the right time, is a very effective agency in the prevention of disease, but that along with it should go proper sanitation and hygienic living.

I close with another quotation from Dr. Hall's Journal of Health: "Men consume too much food and too little pure air; they take too much medicine and too little exercise." "I labor for the good time coming, when sickness and disease, except congenital, or from accident. will be regarded as the result of ignorance or animalism, and will degrade the individual, in the estimation of the good, as much as drunkenness now does."

PRESIDENT FORD: Dr. Bulla, will you lead the discussion of Dr. McGeachy's paper ?

Dr. A. C. Bulla: I came in a little late and did not get all that Dr. McGeachy said in his paper, but I heard him saying something about sanitation. I think the time has come when all of us realize the importance of sanitary homes, well cared for inside and out. All of us wonder, when we go into homes and see the children crawling, running, and playing on floors which are not clean, not clean themselves, how they live to become men and women. I am, for one, a firm believer in sanitation; and I think we realize that when cleanliness in the home, cleanliness of person, cleanliness of environment, become uppermost in the minds of the people, and not until then, shall we see the death rate reduced much below where it is today, especially the infant death rate. It can be done; it is only a process of education. If we put education and sanitation together and push them far enough we can, as Dr. McGeachy says, do without vaccinations; but to stop vaccinations and depend entirely on sanitation might be treading on dangérous grounds. I believe we are coming, some day if sanitation continues to improve, to that point when typhoid fever will occur only occasionally in sporadic cases in this state. When this happens, the population will become so indifferent about typhoid vaccine that we will soon have a susceptible population. Then we will see what we have so frequently heard of in other sections of the United Statesepidemics of typhoid fever. To eradicate typhoid fever and other filth-born diseases, we must have to some extent an immune population. Should we fail in this, I fear that we will some day to our regret experience severe epidemics of typhoid fever.

THE INTER-RELATION OF THE MOUTH AND HEALTH ERNEST A. BRANCH, D.D.S., Raleigh

Mr. President and Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have in mind at this particular time three hundred thousand boys -and girls in our schools. And at this season of the year, above all others, their mothers are becoming to be concerned (and in some few instances their fathers) and are beginning to ask these boys and girls if they are going to be promoted. And by the way that boy drops his eyes they know there is something wrong, and they go to see the teacher. The teacher says, "Yes, I think that boy is going to fail." Then the father becomes interested and goes to see the superintendent, and that is confirmed. And sometimes they go to town to see the county superintendent and ask if there is not some way in which that boy of theirs may be promoted in the school.

Now, I think it is a great pity that that parent did not become interested last September, and it reminds me very much of a man and his wife who wanted to build a home, a house to live in. They talked it over, and they went to see an architect, who told them he could put their ideas on paper. In a few weeks they got together with the architect, and he showed them the front elevation of that building, the side elevation, and the rear elevation, and the specifications. They said it was exactly what they had in mind and decided they had better get a contractor, and they searched the country over and got the best contractor they could find, and he agreed to put up the build. ing and asked them where. "At Podunk," they said. "And when shall I begin?" "On the first Monday in September." The contractor came and brought his workmen on the appointed day, and the couple met him. "Where is the material?" he asked, and they showed it to him. "Do you mean to say you want me to put up the building you have outlined and use those pine poles and straw?" "Yes," said they. That contractor would give that couple the horse-laugh and would turn on his heel and never take a tool out of his box.

Now, we have school buildings that would compare with the very best, and I am satisfied that we have teachers as good as any and better than many. And on the first Monday in September we gather at the school, at this splendid building, with this efficient corps of workers, and here we parents come with our children. We bring them, the lame, the halt, and the blind, and ask the teachers to make mental geniuses out of them, with a mentality that will compare with the very best; and they can not possibly do it. Those things, gentle. men, are revealed to us in the pre-school clinics that you are having now, and the physical defects that we might enumerate are familiar to you. But I want to talk about one physical defect that we find in that group of children that those parents are bringing, and you will find it more frequently than any other. I want to talk to you just a little bit about it. I shall take only a few minutes, because you'are pushed for time, but I want to talk to you on the inter-relation of the mouth of that child and its health.

Nutrition, health, and the child's resistance to disease are all bound up together in the health of the teeth. Food can not be masticated properly without sound and painless teeth, and unmasticated food does not do its full duty to the child-

Pain from an abscessed tooth not only takes away the appetite and lessens the amount of food taken, but deprives the child of rest. In all these ways, plus the additional one of poisons being scattered throughout the body from an infected tooth, unhealthy mouths interfere with the physical and mental development of the child.

The temporary teeth are as important as permanent teeth. They should last until naturally shed—this usually takes place at from six to twelve years of age. Teeth need minerals supplied to them in the diet, and unless the child is fed foods with enough calcium and phos. phorus in them the teeth can not be built firmly and of strong sub. stance. Since the grinding surfaces have pits and grooves in them and ordinary cleaning is not well done, coarse, hard, polishing foods should be given them to work upon.

The exercise that coarse foods provide for the teeth and gums is good for them. The loss of any tooth must bring some degree of change. The first molars are called the keystones of the arch. They are necessary for the normal formation of the completed jaw and the normal placement of the teeth. The loss of a first molar tooth means irregular placement and strain on other teeth, which often leads to early loss of more teeth. The loss of this tooth allows the adjacent teeth to tip into this space; the other teeth have to readjust themselves; and the natural relationships are disturbed. Teeth getting into the wrong positions interfere with the jaw movements. These abnormal conditions tend to produce injury to the tissues about the roots of the teeth. This injury makes a fertile place for the growth of germs, which begin the formation of the little pockets for pus along the roots, loosening of the teeth, and bleeding gums-which may work the beginning of so-called pyorrhea.

The importance of the first permanent molar to the health and the usefulness of the masticating machine can not be over emphasized.

At the age of eighteen all the permanent teeth are supposed to be in position, and nature has finished her work of building the masticating machine that will serve throughout life if proper care is observed and if the teeth have been built of good material.

It is, therefore, most essential during the prenatal life, babyhood, and childhood, up to the eighteenth year, that the diet contain toothbuilding material. It is also essential that the temporary teeth be kept clean and free from decay and that there be no infection of the permanent teeth as they come into place. It is most important that the permanent teeth be kept clean and free from decay, not only to keep the masticating machine in good order but to prevent toothache, abscesses, and infections that may follow such conditions.

If some people could examine the interior of their mouths with the aid of a microscope they would probably be horrified.

Physical defects in the body of the child lessen its ability to resist or throw off infections. One defect can do great harm; and the more defects there are, the greater the danger.

It can not be questioned that healthy teeth in a little child have a great deal to do with his well-being, his lack of susceptibility to endangering children's diseases, and his physical development and happiness.

How often one who is fighting for life through hours of serious illness must hang on by the power of that intangible thing known as good resistance. With a healthy body in which every structure is normal, the average infectious disease will be warded off, and other types of sickness can be prevented from ever arising.

To have a well-rounded program we must include the teaching of mouth health.

DR. JAMES M. PARROTT, Kinston: This paper by Dr. Branch is so remarkably good that while I can not discuss it I want to compliment Dr. Branch on presenting that paper. He certainly does present a paper with remarkable lucidity and clearness and withal pleasing.

PRESIDENT FORD: Dr. Hudson, will you open the discussion on this paper?

Dr. C. C. Hudson: Greensboro: Dr. Branch has given us a very pleasing paper on a very timely and quite interesting subject. It is 556 one in which all of us, as health officers, are deeply interested, but his discussion of it is so complete and so thorough that I really think it needs no further discussion from any of us. It is a complete presentation.

Dr. J. H. Epperson, Durham: There is just one thing I want to say, and I have a little hesitancy in saying it in the presence of Dr. Branch. Any of you who are interested in this phase of health work, I want to say, have missed a rare treat if you have not had Dr. Branch visit your county and talk to your parent-teacher associations and in your schools. We have had Dr. Branch visit us on several occasions, and we think he has been of great help to us. If you have not already done so, get.him to come to your county and let him give your people the message he has given us.

PRESIDENT FORD: I want to say that those of you who have not heard Dr. Branch speak to the rural people, to the parents of the children and the children themselves in the schools, do not know what a human touch he has. He has a human touch that is convincing; he always gets them with him. That touch is so necessary in getting the coöperation of not only the parents and teachers but of the children themselves. They get enthusiastic and he gets the work done.

PRESIDENT FORD: The next number on our program is a paper by Dr. L. B. McBrayer, of Southern Pines, who is the executive secretary of the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association and also the secretary treasurer of the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina. We shall be glad to hear now from Dr. McBrayer.

DR. L. B. McBrayer, Southern Pines: I was just thinking that if Czar Burke could hear all the nice things we have said about Dr. Branch he would probably want to raise his salary, and they are all true. Dr. Branch, in addition to being an expert in the profession of dentistry, has a way of addressing the lay people that, in the slang phrase, gets the thing over to them and has a way of getting them to back him to the limit. I congratulate you, Dr. Branch, and I congratulate the State Board of Health-and congratulate the people of North Carolina on the work Dr. Branch is doing.

I took for my subject, because the Secretary did not give me one,

"Whence-Whither?"

"WHENCE-WHITHER"

Twenty-one years ago, this Association was organized in the city of Charlotte under the title of "The North Carolina Health Officers Association." The outstanding subject of discussion at that meeting was the "whole time Health Officer and his salary." There was general agreement that Health work was of sufficient importance and should be of sufficient magnitude to require all the time of a medical man as Health Officer. One in authority proposed that we agree that $1800 per year was a proper salary for a whole time Health Officer, but the writer took the position that $1800 was entirely inadequate, and finally there was agreement that the minimum salary should not be less than $2500 per annum and this was approved by the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina the following day. Now salaries of $6000 and above are quite common and compared with other things, this is probably in line with the $2500 of that day, and in my opinion, the people get much more than the worth of the money they pay.

And so we have come of age—we are 21. Perhaps we might well ask ourselves a few questions and then project our vision through our mental telescope into the future.

What have we accomplished? Yes, that question would be a good psychologic test, and I hear every one of you reciting promptly, quickly and rapidly the many accomplishments of the Health workers in North Carolina in the past 21 years, so I grade you 100 plus on that test, and a grand array it makes. Something in which this Association and every individual member and the entire population of our state can, may and do take justifiable pride.

In connection with the foregoing, it might be well to ask ourselves, have we, in this 21 years, organized and put into operation a full and complete program of Health work in a single county in North Carolina? If we have, let the successful Health Officer parade an outline of this work before us at this time. If not, why not, and when are we going to? Again, I get a prompt answer, we haven't had sufficient funds—correct again. But don't you think it is time, now that we should we not revise our methods of preventing diphtheria? From figures furnished me by the State Board of Health, I learn that in 1928 there were 355 deaths in our state from diphtheria, but 90% or 317 of these occurred before the child entered school. In 1929 there were 324 deaths from this cause and 318 of these occurred before school age, again 90%. You answer, the family physician should immunize these children below school age; quite right, but does he do it? Have you made proper efforts to enlist his interest in this thing? Anyway, that is where the large part of this work lies.

What about the correction of physical defects? In 1928 and 1929 the State Board of Health inspected-with their nurses 139,751 children in 2,277 schools in 41 counties and found 49.8% with tonsils sufficiently enlarged to be seen easily by a nurse; there was no doubt many more that needed the attention of a throat specialist, running the percentage well up toward 60.

If 50% of the school children have tonsils needing operation, this would total about 450,000. The tonsil clinic conducted by the State Board of Health since it was begun in 1919, now 11 years past, has operated on 20,095 tonsil cases. If they would do in one year what they have done in 11 years, that would still leave 430,000 needing operation. Likely this percentage would not hold good for high school pupils, but there are more than enough children under six years of age needing tonsil operations to much more than offset any deficit in high school pupils. What are we going to do about it? Well—there has been a great deal of fussing on the part of the throat men about this fine demonstration, which is purely an educational scheme. It isn't fair to say, you are wrong, you must stop this, without presenting a positive solution of the problem, so it is up to the doctors who oppose this to present a better solution. In my opinion, the State Medical Society and the County Medical Societies must assume this responsibility, for it is theirs. They owe the children of our state a careful, thorough examination and such treatment as they may need. Of course they should be paid for the work, and the State and County Boards of Health should lead them.

52,206 or 37.3% had diseased teeth, cavities frequently in the permanent teeth. The dental profession has a responsibility here. 22,229 or 16% were 10% or more underweight for their height and age.

15,612 or 11.1% had defects of vision, then there were 1% of these needing treatment for tuberculosis in a sanatorium, and 4% more that needed careful supervision in nutrition classes, treatment in preventorium, etc. Then there were other numbers (exact percentage unknown) who had hookworm and other intestinal parasites, malaria, etc. Dr. Shore thinks, judging from specimens sent to the State Laboratory of Hygiene, that hookworm infestation is not as heavy in the individual cases as formerly, but it would seem that a survey should be made in a few counties in order to determine this point, and also the percentage of general infestation. Then with sanitary toilets in general use, where water closets are not possible, it would seem that hookworm should be found in sporadic cases only, if and when those infected are properly treated.

Likely this year the percentage of undernourished children will show a decided increase. It requires more than a hot lunch, fine and important as that is, to handle this problem. Nutrition classes, properly conducted, produce results.

Is a nurse's inspection a sufficient examination for a school child or any other child? No criticism intended in this or any other statement made in this paper. The school inspection by the State Board of Health is a fine piece of work, but that question is fundamental and should receive the careful consideration that it deserves and it is up to us to offer a solution of the problem, if we answer that question in the negative.

It is a fact that if these children were cared for as they ought to be and as they deserve to be, from birth until six years, few of these defects and diseases would appear during the school age. What and when are the State and County Medical Societies and each and every physician going to do about it? Again led by the State Board of Health.

We have heard much in and from our General Assembly about raising an additional thirteen to fifteen million dollars in order that the State should take over the entire expense of the Grammar Schools without an advalorem tax on real estate. At this writing, April 10th, it looks as if they were going to back off from the proposition. This particular subject might be considered inappropriate for discussion here; but there is one phase of this subject that is not only our function to discuss, but our duty to solve, and in beginning a discussion of this phase. I desire to say that apparently our legislative finance committee and our legislature was trying to fill the barrel at the faucet while the bung was wide open, and they did not see nor did they attempt to see the discharge from the bung.

According to the last printed report of Dr. A. T. Allen, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the schools of the State cost in round numbers thirty-nine million dollars annually. The same report states that 37.6% of all children enrolled fail to pass their grades. That means that out of the thirty-nine million dollars paid annually teaching the school children of our state, $14,664,000.00, or in round numbers fifteen million dollars was and is wasted in teaching children a second year in the same grade they were in the previous year. In Moore County, which is about an average county for our state, Mr. Thomas, our efficient Superintendent of Schools, shows that in the five years just passed, the cost of teaching the children of Moore County was $854,000 and that $413,000 or nearly 50% had been spent in teaching repeaters.

The loss in money, great as it is, is infinitesimal compared with the loss to the children who are the repeaters, and this loss continues to pyramid every day of every year the child or later the adult lives.

Has any State or County Health Department ever attempted to follow through on this proposition and find out and correct the thing or things causing this canker of our civilization? Not to my knowledge. Don't you think it time we were doing this very thing? I do.

We know in a general way that disease and illness are responsible for the larger part of it. We know that acute colds cause more absences from school than any other illness, we know that hypertrophied tonsils, defective vision, undernourishment, hookworm, malaria, acute contagious diseases, etc., are responsible for much of it, just what per cent no one knows. We know that a certain percent, exact percentage unknown, fail to make their grades because of mental deficiencies.

It would take a coöperative effort to handle a thing of this kind properly—the State, City and County Health Departments; the State, City and County Departments of Education; the State and County Departments of Public Welfare; the State and County Medical Societies; the State and County Tuberculosis Association; the Extension Department of the State Sanatorium; the State and local Parent-Teachers Associations; the State and local Women's Clubs; the Department of Psychology of our greater University; the psychiatrists of our State institutions; the Departments of Vocational Training; Domestic Science, etc.

An outline for a tuberculosis control program for a county was presented at the last meeting of this association and should become a part of such a piece of work. The overhead is already provided and paid for. This could be put over in a county by such a combined effort without a great deal of additional expense.

Can the State and County Departments and organizations mentioned cooperate in such a piece of work? Why certainly. Will they? surely. An estimated saving in the annual school cost of some twelve million dollars or more would result, not to mention the improvement in the health, happiness, intelligence, productiveness in whatever vocation these retarded children might choose, which would amount to many, many millions of dollars more. May we express the hope that the State Board of Health will lead the way.

DR. McBrayer (after reading his paper): I happened to find out from Dr. Taylor, after this paper had been prepared, that the State Board of Health is thinking along this line. I can see in it the greatest piece of work that has ever been put over by any state board of health for the people of its state.

DISCUSSION

DR. James M. Parrott, Kinston: I presume it is generally known that I am what you might term the "baby member" of the State Board of Health. My term of office expires day after tomorrow, I think, and whatever I may do I shall have to do in great haste. I was tremendously impressed by Dr. McBrayer's paper; in fact, perhaps like some of you, I might say I was astounded. A great deal of that we have known before, but it was not crystallized so that we might get it into our minds. I am not sure I agree with some of the conclusions of the doctor, but with the general propositions I agree.

This is a great subject. I have had a growing idea, if you will. for some time that after all is said and done, we have been to a large degree—perhaps larger, Mr. President, than we should, with our present limited knowledge-striking at the top of things rather than going down to the bottom. Now, what do I mean by that? You can destroy one fly in May, and it will be equal to destroying a million flies in September-or a billion; statisticians can figure that out. To go further; what is the fundamental thing that is underlying so many of our so-called acute diseases of childhood? I do not know but that there may be a deep, underlying thing under the acute exanthematous diseases of childhood. I am certain I do not know what it is, but I am sure that close study will uncover that one thing or two things or three things or five things, and then we can drive at it and correct it. For instance, this matter of enlarged tonsils. My conclusion is grow. ing quite rapidly, based on my twenty-five years experience as a nose and throat man, the interest of a man not in sanitary science but interested in tonsil disturbances, that after all, the tonsil is not the primary thing itself; that is, the disease does not originate in the tonsil or does in only a small number of cases, in my opinion. Now, what is that thing that is causing all these tonsils to become disturbed All of us who do a great deal of nose and throat work are rapidly coming to the conclusion that a child's tonsils, except under unusual and extraordinary conditions, should not be removed under seven years. Four or five years ago it was two or three years; we have been pushing the age up. Why? Because we have come to the conclusion that there is something underlying that is causing the trouble in the tonsil and that to remove the tonsil is to remove only the top of the thing and not the cause.

Take my distinguished friend, Dr. Branch. Why should all these teeth be troubled? I think there is an underlying thing there. Perhaps it may be diet. I think Dr. McBrayer has rendered an outstanding service in presenting these things to us in such a splendid way that we begin to think along a constructive line, not in the line of removing the effect but of remedying the cause.

How much acute disease, after all, is due to an underlying factor—perhaps, again, errors in diet? We have known, our grandfathers knew, that if a child loaded up on chocolate candy and became constipated and the eliminative organs paralyzed it became very susceptible to colds. Why? Well, if that lowered resistance will bring about that condition in which the child is susceptible to acute coryza, which is well known to be a germ disease, why is not that general condition sufficient to bring the child into such low bodily condition that it will have diphtheria or whooping cough or scarlet fever much more easily than otherwise he would have it?

This matter of diet brings up a wonderful hope. We have given proportionately too much time to considering the question of the accuracy of things and did not worry about the proportions so much. Have we given any thought to the things in the food that ought not to be there? What things in the food are detrimental? Take a man, for instance, who is taking acetanilid and goes on taking it several times a day for ten, fifteen, or twenty days with apparently no disturbance. Then he falls sick and dies. Is there something in the food that might have some effect?

The things in Dr. McBrayer's paper are going to be the medicine of tomorrow; he is that far-sighted. It is what the public-health workers and physiologists and psychologists are going to undertake. We have brains enough here in North Carolina to do the trick; all we need is a Moses like yourself, sir (addressing Dr. McBrayer), to lead us out to the land of Canaan.

DR. J. ROY HEGE, Winston-Salem: I should like to say a word about Dr. McBrayer's paper. A few years ago we made a survey of the number of children that were needing attention as to physical defects. I reported then some very interesting information. We found at that time that the county was maintaining a school building costing approximately $50,000 and employing fifteen teachers to teach the children and heating and maintaining that building for the sole purpose of training repeaters. It was on the strength of that survey that we were granted seven school nurses to visit each county school each day. That is going on today. The superintendent of schools, being, of course, a member of the county board of health, was very much interested in knowing if this group of repeaters could not be eliminated. We have found this, which does not enter in necessarily from a public-health standpoint but more from a welfare standpoint: a nurse checking the absentees daily will get a lot of children in school that otherwise would not come; they do not play hookey quite so badly when there is a nurse to check up on them. The mother is more anxious to get them in school, because if they are absent that is almost prima facie evidence that they are sick, and that requires the nurse to visit the home that day or certainly within two or three days. I am quite sure our attendance is as good as in any county in the state or even better—that is, in the rural schools in Forsyth County. That group of repeaters is decreasing. We are checking up on it now to see what has happened during the last two or three years with relation to the number of children and the grade. Each child's name and grade for the year are registered with the board of education. We will check our defects against that grade—without knowing anything about the grade, of course. We will check with the board of education each pupil's grade with his defects, whether he is a one-plus, two-plus. three-plus, or four-plus defect child. When those two lists are checked we shall have our data. There are repeaters enough that could be eliminated by the nurses of North Carolina to put a public-school nurse in every school of any size. Every thousand school children should have a nurse if the actual repeaters of the present day are to be eliminated. I do not hesitate to say that at all; I think it can be borne out. We can do the same things in the schools that we are doing on the roads; we are paying for gas and riding on concrete. We can put nurses in the schools and in a few years pay the nurses from the elimination of repeaters.

DR. PARROTT: From your experience, Dr. Hege, is it practicable for that to be done in the average ordinary school, the average eightmonths consolidated school?

Dr. Hege: Yes, sir.

Dr. Hege: After two years' time none, because you will have a nurse taking the place of one or two teachers.

Dr. Hege: They are examined by a physician.

PRESIDENT FORD: Are not the teachers that handle those repeaters as a rule specially trained for that purpose? At least, they acquire training through their interest.

DR. HEGE: Yes, that is true, especially of the vocational teachers.

At this point Secretary Register introduced Dr. Swindell. of Wilson, as one of the newest health officers in the Association.

DR. JAMES M. PARROTT: Before going further I should like to make a suggestion (of course, I can not offer a motion in this body) that Dr. McBrayer's paper be furnished to the press with the request that they publish it—after next Sunday; I do not want to add any more confusion to that down in Raleigh.

Dr. J. A. Morris and Dr. C. C. Hudson moved to adopt the suggestion of Dr. Parrott, and this motion was seconded and carried.

PRESIDENT FORD: The next paper on our program is on a subject in which I am sure you are all interested, "Infectious Abortion of Cattle," and will be presented by our State Veterinarian, Dr. William Moore, of Raleigh.

INFECTIOUS ABORTION OF CATTLE WILLIAM MOORE, D.V.M., Raleigh

Infectious Abortion of cattle is probably the most important disease of cattle in this State. It is not a new disease, having been recognized in Europe before the germ theory of disease was established. It has been known to exist in this country for many years, evidently imported with breeding cattle and likewise scattered throughout the United States. Schroeder and Cotton of the U. S. B. A. I. in 1911 in an attempt to demonstrate the T. B. organism in market milk, isolated B. Abortus which was found to be quite common. Infectious Abortion of cattle has not, until recently, been a problem in this state, for the reason that our dairy industry has been established during recent years. Prior to 1906 three-fourths of the counties in North Carolina were infected with the cattle tick, making a profitable cattle industry in those sections impossible. Tick eradication was completed in North Carolina in 1925 and bovine tuberculosis eradication in 1928 and through the efforts of the Dairy Extension Office, State and local Health Departments, and many other agencies, the importance of a dairy industry for our State and the value of dairy products in our diet resulted in a great dairy industry being established and which is now rapidly growing. To establish and maintain this dairy industry it was necessary to bring in from the older dairy sections breeding animals, many of which were affected with tuberculosis, abortion and other diseases. In recent years strict regulations covering cattle brought into the state have been adopted and we now require a tuberculin test for tuberculosis and a blood test for abortion, together with a general health certificate for all cattle brought into the State. The organism causing abortion, like the disease, is known by many names. Abortion Bacillus, B. Abortus, Bang's Bacillus, Brucella Abortus, etc. Discovered by Bang and his assistant, Stribolt, in Denmark in 1897, it is a small, rod-shaped, non-motile and non-spore forming organism; stains easily, but not uniformly with aqueous as well as with carbolized analine dyes and is gram negative. On proper media it grows well in the laboratory. It is a very versatile organism in that it causes most abortions in cows, causes weak calves, many of which die, lesions of the udder, enlarged joints of infected cows, much breeding trouble, temporary and permanent sterility, loss in milk production and diseased sexual organs of the bull. It also produces a similar disease in swine, is sometimes associated with abortion in mares and with poll evil and fistulous withers in horses and mules. It occasions a disease in chickens, lesions in guinea pigs resembling tuberculosis, and has recently been found to produce undulant fever in man.

It was at one time thought that this disease was chiefly transferred by the bull, but it is now believed that most infection takes place through the digestive tract. It may be transmitted by injection into the blood stream or into the vagina, through abrasions of the skin, and possibly through the unbroken skin. Dr. Cotton of the Experiment Station of the U.S. Bureau of Animal Industry has recently shown that cultures dropped into the conjunctival sac invariably produce infection. From our experience with a large number of herds we believe that there is a wide difference in the virulence of this organism which cannot be accounted for by partial immunity. In some herds with rather heavy infection there are no abortions and little spread to negative animals, while in others there are many abortions and a rapid spread to healthy animals even though efforts are made to control the disease. This difference in virulence may in part account for the many failures of man to contract undulant fever from infected milk or from association with infected animals.

Many erroneous ideas regarding this disease and its dissemination have arisen, some of which have resulted in its further spread. One of these was that the disease was of short duration and that there was no danger of spreading infection after an animal failed to abort. This resulted in many infected animals being kept in, or added to, otherwise free herds with the consequent spread of infection.

Cows affected with infectious abortion manifest no common symptoms. Many such animals fail to abort and are otherwise apparently healthy, leaving diagnosis almost entirely to a blood test. While this disease has been found to affect most domestic animals, we have not found it prevalent in this State except in the cow, although we have tested many of them, including goats and swine. These two genera of animals, it is known, carry a very infectious type for man. Treatment of this disease is very unsatisfactory. Many medicinal substances were used and their value judged at a time when the disease had run its natural course. No drug or medicinal compound has proved to be effective in the cure or prevention of this disease. Treatment in many cases should be given the aborting animal, particularly when there is retention of after-birth or disease of the reproductive organs. The use of biologics, especially vaccines, has proven of value in establishing immunity, but frequently causes permanent infection which makes their administration undesirable. Recent experiments with vaccines on calves look promising.

Now for a brief discussion of undulant fever. In this, like many other controversial matters, there are two extreme views. One would deny the existence of undulant fever in man or its relation to abortion in cows, and the other would look upon abortion in cows as a serious menace to human health with undulant fever in man of great public health importance. I believe that there is a middle ground between these two views that is safe to stand on. If one will read the literature pertaining to this one must be convinced that there is some connection between the two diseases, yet we are unable to explain why there is so little undulant fever in man as compared to the prevalence of abortion in cows. If there is a connection between the two diseases, even though remote, it places one of our most important foods, milk, under a suspicion which is an undesirable situation for our struggling dairy industry. From the work that we have done in connection with abortion in cattle, we believe that it causes enough economic loss to justify the trouble and expense necessary to eradicate it. The possibility of the disease being transmitted to man is an additional reason for its eradication.

I can somewhat appreciate the position of health officials in this matter and realize that they would not knowingly do anything that would restrict the supply of our greatest foods, milk and other dairy products; yet we must reckon with a sometimes hysterical public that would force a more hurtful remedy than the condition which we attempt to correct. I am not opposed to pasteurization for I realize its advantages under certain conditions; however, I also realize that in many instances compulsory pasteurization leads to monopoly of a milk supply. If it is argued that pasteurization is necessary for the control of undulant fever, then this will not take care of the situation in North Carolina because this state is largely rural and pasteurized milk is not available to these sections. If any animal disease is dangerous to man it must be eliminated at its source. This is true of bovine tuberculosis and equally true of other animal diseases. From the work that has been done we have gained sufficient knowledge to enable us to control and ultimately eradicate this disease from a herd, and we believe that the economic loss caused by the disease justifies the expense and trouble. The control and eradication is based on the agglutination test, which is a very accurate means of diagnosis, and segregation, with the application of adequate sanitary measures. This test does not tell us all we would like to know, but it does give us an index for the proper handling of the herd. By the use of the blood test, separation and proper sanitation, with the full cooperation of the herd owner, the disease can be controlled. I would not recommend the adoption of this work on a large scale or set the completion of it in a given short time, but would urge herd owners to begin now to eliminate this disease from their herds. The facts that infected animals may be kept isolated on the same premises with non-infected animals without great danger of spreading infection, and that healthy cows may be raised from such infected animals, offer an opportunity of eradicating this disease by elimination and without great financial loss. Health Departments can do much to encourage this work by discussing it with their dairy men, giving them assurance that no drastic action will be adopted in the event of their undertaking the program of eradication which is here recommended.

DISCUSSION

PRESIDENT FORD: I see that Mr. H. E. Miller, Chief of the Bureau of Engineering and Inspection of the State Board of Health, is present, and I shall ask him to say a few words from the point of view of the State Board of Health.

Mr. H. E. MILLER, Raleigh: I have had opportunity to be in very close touch with this matter, and I want to say that Dr. Moore and his co-workers have carried on their work in very close coöperation with the local and state health departments. The main thing I should like to say in comment on Dr. Moore's paper is to offer a caution to health officers against undertaking to do something when they do not know what they are trying to do. As Dr. Moore brought out, there is apparently a connection between the disease in the animal and in man. The indications are that the frequency of transmission must be very, very limited. For instance, we have one herd in a state institution with about 56 per cent positive reactors. There are some 1,600 persons in that institution, many of them having been there for a very long time. The management of that institution has been very diligent in providing adequate diet for its inmates. I do not believe there is a case of undulant fever in that institution, nor has there been one. It is possible that the disease is not recognized, but so far as we know there have been very few cases in the state. We must realize that it is a problem in which we know so little in regard to the exact relation and know so little of the nature of the danger we are dealing with that one can consider, on the one hand, that it is a matter of relativity, so far as we are concerned, as a public-health question, and can consider, on the other hand, that milk is one of our most important and most essential elements of diet. If anything destroys the public confidence in milk unnecessarily a tremendous amount of damage will have been done—a damage, in my opinion, with which the possible spread of undulant fever can not at all be compared.

NORTH CAROLINA PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION

Then we must recognize another thing-the practical, economic side of the thing, that if we want more milk produced and better milk produced we must have a thriving dairy industry. To use a slang phrase, as Dr. McBrayer said a while ago, we should not go off half cocked on the matter, as has occurred in some instances. With our present state of knowledge I doubt if we could accomplish very much at this time, and we certainly shall have done a tremendous amount of harm. My own view is that we should all work very diligently with our own facilities and in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture to reach some working basis. I think Dr. Moore's department has gone about this matter in a very sane way by educating the dairymen, and in some communities they have gone about quietly to gradually eliminate all infected animals from the herds. It will, of course, take time to do that, but from the information we have at present that seems to be the best solution. As Dr. Moore has pointed out, in North Carolina we can not solve the matter entirely by pasteurization. There are some communities, such as this one, in which it is possible to have the entire milk supply pasteurized, but that is possible in only a few communities. So I do not think we should attempt to resort to that measure except where the situation in this and other large communities will permit it.

The main thing I should like to bring out in discussing Dr. Moore's paper is the matter of caution.

DR. JOHN H. HAMILTON, Wilmington: I think there have been probably more people interested in making an investigation of undulant fever than have ever before tackled any public-health problem. People have been working in feverish haste to contribute to our knowledge of this disease, which is to us relatively a new disease.

I have been interested in undulant fever, or abortus fever, for the last five years. I think I read a paper before the State Medical Society on undulant fever. At that time we thought undulant fever was going to be a public-health problem of considerable magnitude. I think most of our leaders in this field of investigation now feel it is a condition of minor public-health importance. Hardy, of Iowa, has probably made more investigation of undulant fever than any other man in the country. He has gone into the state of Iowa, which has approximately about the same population as North Carolina, and has discovered that about four hundred cases have occurred there in the last three or four years. He has found that a great deal of this undulant fever is due to the porcine type of the organism. We have conducted a very careful search for undulant fever in our county. a county with about 42,000 people in it and with about sixty per cent of those people drinking milk that we know to come from herds infected with the Brucella abortus; and we have found exactly one case that we could say definitely was infected with undulant fever. That person was drinking milk from the family cow. I believe if we have a problem of undulant fever in North Carolina it is much greater among the people drinking milk from individually owned cows rather than from dairies, where the milk from infected cows, if any, is diluted with milk from uninfected cows.

1 should like to supplement what Mr. Miller said by saying that I believe far greater damage has been caused by malnutrition due to failure to drink milk than to infection caused by drinking contaminated milk. I do not mean to advocate contaminated milk, but I think malnutrition is a far greater problem.

Dr. L. B. McBrayer, Southern Pines: I want to express my appreciation, so far as I can, and express the appreciation of the people of North Carolina, particularly those of us who are interested in the prevention of disease and in the medical profession, of the work that Dr. Moore and his co-workers have been doing all along the line. I remember on one occasion I found it necessary to buy some thoroughbred cows in Massachusetts. Knowing something about it (having absorbed something from Dr. Moore along the way), I asked: "Do you furnish a certificate of freedom from tuberculosis and general good health?" "Yes," they said, "we will do that." "Then," I said, "I want the privilege of retesting these cows within ninety days. and if they are positive to tuberculin I want to send them back to you." "Oh, no," they said, "we can not do that; we could not think of doing that. You might take them down there and put them in your herd that already has tuberculosis and infect them." "Well." I said. "I can furnish a certificate from Dr. Moore, the State Veterinarian, that the herd is tuberculosis-free." "Oh, well, all right, if you can do that we will agree." So the matter was handled in that way.

With the work Dr. Moore and his assistants have done they have just about cleaned up all the herds in North Carolina in the matter of tuberculosis. Now, the same law that applies to the cow and the calf applies to folks. I am just wondering when we are going to do that with children. Then we come along with this scientific work they have been doing on the Bang bacillus and infection from it. They do not want to go off half cocked, but they have done a fine piece of work on it, and I expect by the time we meet again or certainly within the next two or three years we shall know a great deal more about the infection in cattle and hogs and people than we do now.

Dr. Moore has done a fine piece of work on it, and I just wanted to say that word of appreciation.

On motion of Dr. R. S. McGeachy, seconded by Dr. J. A. Morris and duly carried, the following resolution was adopted:

RESOLVED: that the North Carolina Public Health Association petition the State Board of Health to take under consideration the matter of changing the regulation in regard to the control of German measles from quarantine to placarding, putting it in the same category as chicken-pox.

The President announced the appointment of the following committees:

Committee on Nominations: Dr. J. Roy Hege, Dr. A. C. Bulla. Dr. C. C. Hudson.

Committee on Resolutions: Dr. C. C. Hudson, Dr. John H. Hamilton, Dr. Sumner.

The program up to this time having been completed, and there being no further business to come up, the Association then adjourned. to meet at eight o'clock p. m.

The Third Session of the North Carolina Public Health Association was called to order by the President, Dr. D. E. Ford, at 8 p. m.

The first item on the program was an address by Dr. Morris Fish. bein of Chicago, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia. Dr. Fishbein delivered a most splendid and instructive address. He spoke so rapidly, as is his custom, that the reporter could not take it.

RESOLVED, that the North Carolina Public Health Association request that the State Board of Health furnish toxin and anti-toxin to county and city health departments without charge.

The Secretary was instructed to transmit this resolution to the State Board of Health. Resolution was unanimously adopted.

The Secretary was instructed to write Mrs. Laughinghouse and Mrs. Thompson a letter expressing the loss to the Society in the death of Drs. Laughinghouse and Thompson and express our sympathy to the loved ones.

On motion, the thanks and appreciation of the Society were extended to Mr. George Watts Hill for the splendid barbecue dinner and other courtesies shown at his splendid Quail Roost Farm. The Secretary was instructed to notify Mr. Hill of this action.

The Committee on Nominations made the following report:

President, Dr. J. H. Epperson, Durham. Vice-President, Dr. C. N. Sisk, Rockingham. Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. Z. P. Mitchell, Weldon.

No further business appearing, on motion adjourned sine die,
